The Concluſion of Monſieur de Mellarede's Letter to the Swiſs Cantons.

TO come at length to the Anſwer which the Marqueſs de Puiſieux has given you, and which you have done the Honour to communicate to me; I need do no more to diſcover the Artifice of it, than to re-mind you, moſt Illuſtrious and moſt puiſſant Lords, that if in my Memorials of the 27th and 29th of May, I did not inſiſt further on this Neutrality, and if I have addreſs'd my ſelf to the Laudable Proteſtant Cantons to deſire Troops of them, (as I ſtill continue to do,) 'tis becauſe that Miniſter poſitively denied you a Neutrality for Savoy: I am ſince inform'd that to prevent the ſaid Proteſtant Cantons Compliance with my demand of Troops, a demand which is conformable to your perpetual Peace with France, and is not contrary to your Alliance made with that Crown in 1663, he told you that his Anſwer was not rightly underſtood, and put you in ſome kind of Expectation of his granting the Security you deſire. The Deputies of the Laudable Proteſtant Cantons, foreſeeing this his putting you in ſome Hopes was but a new Amuſement, ask'd me for the Capitulations and Conditions on which I deſir'd Troops of them; I gave them my Propoſals, and they ſignified to me that they were ſatisfied of the Sincerity with which I had dealt with them inthat Affair: They found in my Propoſals, Aſſurances, which provided for the Support of his Royal Highneſs, and at the ſame time that Savoy ſhould be perpetually united to his other Dominions; they found in them Offers to procure the Guaranty of his High Allies; A Promiſe that the Treaty ſhould be confirm'd when a Peace is made; and that all the Laudable Cantons and their Allies ſhould be included in it. Offers and Aſſurances that deſerve your ſerious Conſideration. Mean time, upon what the Marqueſs de Puiſieux ſaid before his Departure from Baden, you judg'd it proper, moſt Illuſtrious and moſt Puiſſant Lords, to write to him afreſh and renew your Inſtances; by his Anſwer of the 26th of June, you ſee what the Hopes he gave you amounted to, to nothing more than that his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty continues in his former Sentiments, and makes the ſame Offers he did before, that is to ſay, to commit the Chablais and the Fauſſigni to your keeping, and thereby engage you to maintain the Uſurpation France has made, to expoſe your Troops in an open Country that has no fortified Places; and to engage you in a War with his Royal Highneſs, in oppoſing his Reeſtabliſhing himſelf in his Dominions, and in your Neighbourhood.

To conclude, If by his Offers the Marqueſs de Puiſieux means thoſe he made in his Memorial of the 23d of May, and in the Letter he wrote to the Laudable Canton of Zurich the 31ſt of the ſame Month, which imported that his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty will not unite Savoy to his Crown when Peace ſhall be concluded; That Offer is ſo deceitful and equivocal, that I ſhould put an Affront on your Penetration, ſhould I go about to diſcover to you the Artifice of it, and the little Weight you can lay on the Promiſes of a Potentate, who does not look upon himſelf to be bound by the moſt ſolemn Treaties. The Term of Reunion is ſo familiar to France, and is beſides ſo particularly ſignificant in this Caſe, that I need only mention it without enlarging any further.

Had the Marqueſs de Puiſieux acted ſincerely and without Diſguiſe, (if 'tis poſſible for a Miniſter of France to do ſo,) and had better Intentions, has he not had time enough to procure Orders and Inſtructions from the King his Maſter on the new Repreſentations you made to him in your Letter of the 23d of June? How therefore could he venture, after his Anſwer given the 25th of that Month, to make that Anſwer you have done me the Honour to communicate to me? An Anſwer that ſhews the little Regard he continues to have for you, and which ought to inſtruct you what you are to expect from this Miniſter, after ſuch Proceedings which Merit nothing but your Reſentment.

I beſeech the Almighty to ſhower all manner of Proſperity and Bleſſings upon you.

Moſt Illuſtrious and moſt Puiſſant Lords,

P. Mellarede.
